

Matt Myers

Saratoga Springs, New York
President

I joined ZBT due to the fact that Arizona's chapter represented diversity while still showcasing a tight knit bond between their brothers. The environment displayed at Alpha Omicron is exactly what I was looking for in the Greek Community. I took this position with a vision of taking our brotherhood and providing it with the national connection we have lacked in our chapter for years prior. I love the people in this house, and I believe there is no better way to give back to my brothers than setting them up with future opportunities. I also saw areas of our culture that could be positively impacted by a leader that is approachable and personable as the President of a fraternal chapter.

Mike Finkelstein

Santa Monica, California
Vice President of Operations

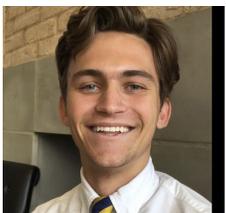

Hi, my name is Mike Finkelstein and I am a pre-business sophomore from Santa Monica, California. I am currently the Operations Director of ZBT, and I have plans for improving the chapter from an internal focus. I will strive to ensure ZBT's members know chapter policy and procedure, as well as maintain strong IFC relations and academic success as a chapter of excellence. I joined ZBT not only to carry on my father's legacy, but to join a loving and genuine community of brothers and alumni that I will make lifelong connections with.

Jordan Pardo

Los Angeles, California
Vice President of Programming

Hi, my name is Jordan Pardo and I am a pre-business sophomore from Los Angeles, California. I decided to come to the University of Arizona because I fell in love with the campus the moment, I first saw it. While I was going through recruitment, I knew that I wanted to become a member of Zeta Beta Tau. I had many fantastic conversations with all of the members, and I knew it was the perfect fit for me. As vice president of programming, I have dedicated myself to improving our philanthropy, creating a fun social scene, putting on events such as mom's weekend, and putting together community service opportunities. I plan to strengthen the house involvement within our community and serve under the president in all day-to-day operations of the chapter. I decided to take on this position because I enjoy giving back to the fraternity and want to make an impact. It's great to be a zeeb!

Logan Mullany

Phoenix, Arizona
Vice President of Communications

I came to the University of Arizona from Phoenix because I wanted to stay close to home. When I went through recruitment and met the brothers of ZBT Alpha Omicron, I knew I had found a new home. ZBT's diverse and tight knit community has turned me into a man who works for work worth doing - specifically, to make the brothers of ZBT stronger and more well rounded as well as showing the greater greek life community what a chapter has the potential to be. I became the vice president of communications to strengthen our brothers connections with each other and with our alumni. I feel my purpose as a brother of alpha omicron is to thicken the bonds that fraternity offers. bonds that fraternity offers.

Joe Eisenberg

Phoenix, Arizona
Finance Director

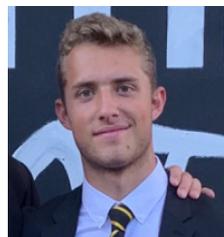

I am the Finance Director of the Alpha Omicron chapter at the University of Arizona. I joined ZBT after the great connections I had with brothers during my recruitment process, I knew this was the right house for me. As finance director I plan to keep the efficiency of the chapters spending and ensure proper payment is brought to the chapter as a whole. I think this position is best suited for my skill set and how I can make the biggest impact personally for my fellow brothers.

Jack Drescher

Tucson, Arizona
Brotherhood Development Director

My name is Jack Drescher and I am from Tucson, Arizona. I am a junior at the University of Arizona studying Business Economics at Eller College of Management. I chose to join ZBT to get out of my comfort zone and push myself to meet new people which I never thought would mean so much to me. I wanted to be a part of something special and also leave my mark on the fraternity which is why I decided to run for the executive board. I am the brotherhood development director here at ZBT and plan to close the gap between the older brothers to bring them closer to our newer members. Becoming a member of ZBT has been one of the best decisions of my life. It's great to be a zeeb.

Jake Wern

Manchester, New Hampshire
Risk Manager

I joined ZBT because I felt I could be myself and not who the fraternity wanted me to be. I felt the brotherhood without the pressure of fitting in, i was accepted. I chose to run for risk management because I care about my brothers and their guests. Also, as an engineer, I prefer to stay in more than go out, so being there for my brothers outside of the party was not a turn off. I look forward to the future opportunities this position leads to.

Austyn Devoss

Arlington Heights, Illinois
Risk Manager

I came to the University of Arizona, and had no clue what I'd end up doing. When I went through rush, I knew I had to find somewhere I belonged, because I was so far from home and it was immediately ZBT. I had zero friends coming in as a freshman here, and now I have more than I thought was possible. I took this position because I care about the house as a whole and never want to see anything happen to it. I wanted to make sure my brothers were safe everyday, and could still enjoy themselves. Creating relationships with IFC and Campus Police is something I really took interest in, and wanted to make those connections even stronger.

Zack Sullivan

Sioux Falls, SD
Recruitment Director

I joined ZBT because of the energy I felt every time I walked in the building. I also felt like ZBT was a place that I could feel comfortable and safe. I decided to take this position with the vision of improving our house through education. I believe that if you get kids with good values then they will work wonders for our house.
